Penny has been a leading parenting educator, teacher/trainer and consultant for over 30 years. She has held a number of professional positions in non-profit agencies, schools, and colleges working directly with parents, teachers, children and early childhood staff, as well as foster/adoptive caregivers and social workers. She is a Certified Positive Discipline Associate and a Certified Lead Trainer with the Positive Discipline Association and as such, facilitates trainings for parenting educators and teacher trainers in the concepts of Positive Discipline (from the book Positive Discipline by Jane Nelsen, EdD, based on the theories of Alfred Adler).

Penny received her B.A in Sociology from the University of Alberta in Edmonton, Canada, and her M.A in Human Development from Pacific Oaks College in Pasadena, California. Her graduate work focused on attachment, brain development, and behavior of children as they relate to those who have experienced chronic trauma (abuse and/or neglect). As a result of this work, she has extensive experience training social service staff and caregivers regarding behavior management of children with trauma histories.

Attendees comment that her workshops and classes are “fun,” “engaging,” “down to earth,” and “full of new learning for participants.” Penny demonstrates knowledge, love and passion for her subject matter and attendees return to her informative courses with excitement and enthusiasm.

Penny is Canadian by birth, lived in Southern California for many years, and is now located in the Pacific Northwest, just north of Seattle. She is available for travel.
